Item 4: Advisory Business

Firm Description

Charles A. Liles & Associates, Inc., (the "Firm") was founded in 2003.

The Firm provides personalized, confidential financial planning and investment management to individuals, trusts, estates, partnerships and small businesses. Advice is provided through consultation with the client and may include: determination of financial objectives, identification of financial problems, cash flow management, tax planning, insurance review, investment management, education funding, retirement and estate planning, and charitable giving.

The Firm is strictly a fee-only investment management and financial planning firm. The firm does not sell annuities, insurance, stocks, bonds, mutual funds, limited partnerships, or other commissioned products. The firm is not affiliated with entities that sell financial products or securities. No commissions in any form are accepted. No finder's fees are accepted.

Investment advice is an integral part of financial planning. Extensive conversations are held with each client before any investment recommendation is made to determine the client's financial goals and objectives, attitude toward financial risk and investment time horizon.

Clients are presented with an investment plan which summarizes their current investment and financial situation along with specific recommendations and a time line for implementation.

The Firm does not act as a custodian of client assets. Clients receive periodic statements, trade confirmations and other information from an independent securities custodian. The Firm places trades for clients under a limited power of attorney.

The Firm coordinates its investment management and financial planning work with the client's other professional advisors such as attorneys, accountants and insurance agents.

The initial meeting is free of charge and is considered an exploratory interview to determine the extent to which financial planning and investment management may be beneficial to the client.

Principal Owners

Charles A. Liles is 100% owner of Charles A. Liles & Associates, Inc.

Types of Advisory Services

Charles A. Liles & Associates, Inc. provides investment and financial planning and management services.

On more than an occasional basis, the Firm furnishes advice to clients on matters in addition to investments such as insurance; college savings; cash management, savings and credit; estate planning and family giving; charitable giving and philanthropy; retirement planning; and taxes.

As of December 31, 2018, Charles A. Liles & Associates, Inc. managed $35.1 million in assets for 25 clients. All assets are managed on a discretionary basis, with none managed on a non-discretionary basis.

Tailored Relationships

All investment planning and management services are tailored to meet the specific needs, goals and objectives of each client. Financial planning needs are determined during initial conversations and prioritized and addressed during the client engagement.

Clients may impose restrictions on investing in certain securities or types of securities.

Agreements may not be assigned without written client consent.

Investment Advisory Agreement

Charles A. Liles & Associates, Inc. requires all clients sign an Investment Advisory Agreement which outlines all aspects of an investment planning and management engagement. In addition, each client signs an Investment Advisory Fee Schedule, and completes an Addendum to Investment Advisory Agreement which provides needed personal information to establish account(s) with the third party securities custodian.

The Investment Advisory Fee is calculated monthly based on the market value of assets as shown on the custodian's statement as of the last business day of each month. The fee is paid quarterly after the end of the three month billing period. Clients agree to have advisory fees deducted from their custodial accounts and are provided with a detailed, written computation of fees before the fees are deducted.

The monthly fee rate is one twelfth (1/12) of the following annual rates:

1.00% for the first	$ 500,000
.80% for the next	$ 500,000
.60% for the next	$2,000,000
.40% for the next	$2,000,000

The annual rate for aggregate values in excess of $5,000,000 is negotiable.

Family accounts may be grouped for fee computation purposes.

The computation of fees begins on the last day of the month in which the account is funded. Fees for terminated advisory relationships are computed through the last day of the month immediately prior to termination.

Hourly rates (plus out-of-pocket expenses) for special client projects and requests are available and depend upon the scope and complexity of the assignment and are set on a case-by-case basis.

The client or Firm may terminate the advisory relationship at any time by providing written notice to the other party.

Asset Management

Assets are invested primarily in no-load or load-waived mutual funds and exchange-traded funds through a discount broker/dealer securities custodian. Fund companies charge each fund shareholder an investment management expense fee that is disclosed in the fund prospectus. Discount brokerages may also charge a transaction fee for the purchase of some funds.

Clients may from time-to-time ask the Firm to hold existing positions in stocks and bonds. This may be accommodated for low cost basis securities the client holds for charitable giving or if there is an agreement to sell the individual securities over time as part of the investment plan. The brokerage firm charges a fee for stock and bond trades. Charles A. Liles & Associates, Inc. does not receive any compensation, in any form, from fund companies.

Item 5: Fees and Compensation

Description

Please see the description of Investment Advisory Fees under Investment Advisory Agreement noted in Item 4.

Fees are NOT NEGOTIABLE except for aggregate investment values in excess of $5,000,000.

Fee Billing

Please see the description of fee billing under Investment Advisory Agreement noted in Item 4.

Other Fees

Custodians may charge transaction fees on purchases or sales of certain mutual funds and exchange-traded funds. These transaction charges are usually small and incidental to the purchase or sale of a security. The selection of the security is more important than the nominal fee that the custodian charges to buy or sell the security.

Expense Ratios

Mutual funds generally charge a management fee for their services as investment managers. The management fee is called an expense ratio. For example, an expense ratio of 0.50 means that the mutual fund company charges 0.5% for their services. These fees are in addition to the fees paid by the client to Charles A. Liles & Associates, Inc. Details on the expense ratio of a mutual fund are found in the fund's Prospectus available online through the fund's website.

Performance figures quoted by mutual fund companies in various publications are after their fees have been deducted.

Item 6: Performance-Based Fees

Sharing of Capital Gains

Charles A. Liles & Associates, Inc. does not accept performance-based fees which are fees based on a share of capital gains on or capital appreciation of the investment assets of a client nor does it recommend investments which use performance-based fees.

Compensation to the Firm is based solely on the market value of client assets as described under the Investment Advisory Agreement section noted in Item 4.

Item 7: Types of Clients

Description

The Firm provides personalized, confidential investment management and financial planning to individuals, trusts, estates, partnerships and small businesses.

Client relationships vary in scope and length of service.

Account Minimums

Charles A. Liles & Associates, Inc. requires an aggregated minimum of assets under management of $500,000 to open an investment advisory relationship.

The Firm in its sole discretion, may waive its minimum relationship size based upon certain criteria (e.g., historical relationship, type of assets, anticipated future earning capacity, anticipated future additional assets, dollar amounts of assets to be managed, related accounts, account composition, negotiations with clients, etc.).

Item 8: Methods of Analysis, Investment Strategies and Risk of Loss

Methods of Analysis

Security analysis methods may include fundamental analysis, technical analysis, and cyclical analysis.

The main sources of information include financial newspapers and magazines, research materials prepared by others, corporate rating services, annual reports, prospectuses, filings with the Securities and Exchange Commission, and company press releases.

Other sources of information that Charles A. Liles & Associates, Inc. may use include Morningstar Principia mutual fund information, Advisor Intelligence, and various financial websites.

Investment Strategies

The primary investment strategy used on client accounts is strategic asset allocation utilizing a core and satellite approach. This means that we use passively-managed index and exchange-traded funds as the core investments, and then add actively-managed funds where there are greater opportunities to make a difference. Portfolios are globally diversified to control the risk associated with traditional markets. A disciplined approach to rebalancing is employed in order to maintain asset class exposures within desired risk tolerances subject to client-specific tax planning and other considerations.

The investment advisory service centers around a disciplined approach to planning a client's investment strategy and includes: a review of the client's current investment activities, strategies and policies; proposing asset allocation strategies using modern portfolio concepts and taking into consideration the client's unique financial circumstances and evolving goals; proposing appropriate securities to fulfill the asset allocation strategy including coordinating custody and brokerage services; preparing a written Investment Policy Statement to include background and purpose, objectives, investment guidelines, selection of money managers, securities guidelines and periodic reporting procedures; and, providing ongoing supervision of the investment program.

Other strategies may include long-term purchases, short-term purchases, trading, margin transactions, and covered option writing.

Personal and financial information is updated and reviewed periodically to assure timeliness of advice and recommendations.

Risk of Loss

All investment programs have certain risks that are borne by the investor. Our investment approach is to educate clients about the risks of investing and to manage the risks in the context of meeting the client's investment objectives. Investors face the following investment risks:

- Interest-rate Risk: Fluctuations in interest rates may cause investment prices to fluctuate. For example, when interest rates rise, yields on existing bonds become less attractive, causing their market values to decline.

- Market Risk: The price of a security, bond, or mutual fund may drop in reaction to tangible and intangible events and conditions. This type of risk is caused by external factors independent of a security's particular underlying circumstances. For example, political, economic and social conditions may trigger market events.
- Inflation Risk: When any type of inflation is present, a dollar today will not buy as much as a dollar next year, because purchasing power is eroding at the rate of inflation.
- Currency Risk: Overseas investments are subject to fluctuations in the value of the dollar against the currency of the investment's originating country. This is also referred to as exchange rate risk.
- Reinvestment Risk: This is the risk that future proceeds from investments may have to be reinvested at a potentially lower rate of return (i.e. interest rate). This primarily relates to fixed income securities.
- Business Risk: These risks are associated with a particular industry or a particular company within an industry. For example, oil-drilling companies depend on finding oil and then refining it, a lengthy process, before they can generate a profit. They carry a higher risk of profitability than an electric company, which generates its income from a steady stream of customers who buy electricity no matter what the economic environment is like.
- Liquidity Risk: Liquidity is the ability to readily convert an investment into cash. Generally, assets are more liquid if many traders are interested in a standardized product. For example, Treasury Bills are highly liquid, while real estate properties are not.
- Financial Risk: Excessive borrowing to finance a business' operations increases the risk of profitability, because the company must meet the terms of its obligations in good times and bad. During periods of financial stress, the inability to meet loan obligations may result in bankruptcy and/or a declining market value.

Item 13: Review of Accounts

Periodic Reviews

Periodic portfolio and account reviews are held with each client at frequencies ranging from every four to every six months. Client investments are organized by cash, equities, fixed income and alternative investments and by equity style such as large cap and small cap and by equity discipline such as growth, value and international. Current market values are compared with investment plan targets established in each client's investment policy statements. Recommendations to buy or sell investments are made if values have moved outside of policy percentage targets or for purposes of meeting the client's cash flow needs. In addition, securities sales and purchases may also be recommended to effect tax loss recognition.

Rebalancing may not be recommended for various reasons such as avoidance of short-term capital gains, deferring long-term capital gains realization, minimizing transaction costs, or the Firm's view on whether an asset class, style or discipline is under- or over-valued relative to historic norms.

Portfolio reviews may be undertaken more frequently at client request if special cash needs arise or when additional cash or securities are added to an account.

The President of Charles A. Liles & Associates, Inc. performs all portfolio and account reviews.

Review Triggers

Other conditions that may trigger a review are changes in Federal tax laws, new investment information, and changes in a client's own financial situation.

Regular Reports

A Portfolio Allocation and Rebalancing Sheet is reviewed at every client portfolio and account review meeting. Each meeting is followed-up with a detailed letter summarizing the key points of the meeting, actions undertaken and actions planned for the intervening months before the next client meeting.

Monthly statements are either mailed or made available online to each client from the account custodian, Fidelity Investments, showing the market value of each investment at the end of the month and a history of any transactions made during the month. Clients are also mailed trade confirmations immediately after a trade has occurred in any account. Clients may elect to receive their monthly custodian statement and trade confirmations via email.

Clients are encouraged to carefully review the monthly statements received from Fidelity Investments and to contact Charles Liles, President of the Firm, should they detect any unauthorized trading in an account, or unauthorized transfers of cash or securities.

This is for the safety of the Firm's clients.

However, each client grants the Firm the authority to deduct investment advisory fees periodically from the client's account(s) which is generally more efficient for both the client and the Firm. Fees are only deducted after the client has had a reasonable opportunity to review the computation of the fees due.

Clients of the Firm can establish standing letters of authorization ("SLOA") or other similar transfer authorization instructions with Fidelity Investments, a qualified custodian, to grant the Firm the power to disburse funds to accounts specifically designated by the client. The Firm and its clients have implemented a wide variety of SLOA arrangements. Liles & Associates, Inc. Client also authorizes the custodian to accept instructions from the Firm to deduct advisor fees directly from client's account(s). However, the firm as a matter of course consults with the client prior to each trade to obtain concurrence.

The Firm's ability to enter trades electronically for clients often provides reduced transaction fees and more timely completion of trades. The Firm does not receive any portion of the transaction fees or commissions paid by the client to the custodian on certain trades.

The Firm seeks to limit the amount of trading in client accounts in order to minimize transaction fees, other expenses and tax consequences associated with trading.

Item 17: Voting Client Securities
